WHAT'S TRENDING OUR ONGOING COMMITMENT TO YOUR HEALTH AND SAFETY

As we continue to deal with the coronavirus, the quality of our indoor air is critical. At Gross Heating, we're doing whatever we can to help. Our technicians follow a strict protocol to best protect you and your home. Every team member carries hand sanitizer, masks, and gloves, and is trained to disinfect everything we touch. If someone feels ill, they stay home. And you can bet that we're keeping up-to-date on the ever-changing news and health recommendations.

We have indoor air quality solutions tailor-made to help remove harmful contaminants from circulating through your vents—including certain stubborn viruses and bacteria. For more on these products, see the back side of this newsletter.

For just-right comfort, you need a team that's just right, so let the award-winning experts at Gross Heating help keep your home safe and healthy all year long.

IT TAKES MORE THAN A FILTER TO HAVE FRESH AIR

Air filters can go a long way toward keeping your indoor air free of airborne pollutants, but they're only one piece of the puzzle. Our line of air quality solutions can help finish the job:

- Air exchangers bring in fresh, clean air from the outdoors, remove stale indoor air, and moderate temperature to minimize heat loss.
- UV lights zap and destroy bacteria and other microorganisms before they can multiply.
- Air filters catch airborne pollutants as they pass through your heating and cooling systems, preventing them from circulating.
